Practical information – Habits and Customs

- When abroad, the foreigner is you! Therefore, in case of culture shock, it is up to you to be discreet...
- Religious monuments, even disused ones, are always visited barefoot and without head covers (caps etc.) and shorts and tank tops are forbidden!
- You should never pose in front of a Buddha statue with your back turned: it is a lack of respect
- The Sri Lankans are generally smiling, peaceful, very courteous and not aggressive: Getting angry with them or getting upset with them can only lead to a situation of total misunderstanding, or even blockage.

Practical information – Habits and Customs

- In Sri Lanka, as in most Asian countries, time is a subjective notion that flows at the rhythm of one's thoughts. It is therefore "variable geometry!"
- Elephants, a major tourist attraction, suffer because of the entertainment activities offered to travelers. You are therefore advised to think before visiting such places or participating in its activities.
